I'm here it is 930 at and me and Ali are out here in the car and we got in a terrible rainstorm and I could barely see where I was going and I'd be very slow anyway I crossed the road came up and it came up and into the driveway and a stop and there was I knew there was a car or car light coming up over the hill across the road. And that point I noticed that it got brighter and brighter and the lights are so bright it lit up everything around me some brightest lines ever seen. There are only two of them, but still is the brightest headlights ever seen the blinding and then I noticed that the headlights were too close together for it to be a car is one of those off road things. And that guy didn't even slow down when he came to the intersection. You got blue right through it and blue right over here. 90 miles an hour. They don't have to follow those things do not have to follow regulation. They don't have to have licensing. They don't have to have regulation powers. They are literally any excuse to avoid paying taxes. That's what they're used for. And they flew up and went on top of the hill. done you know who that is?
